Ole Tuftic, separator man on the Anton Falia threshing outfit, had the misfortune to break his left arm, above the elbow, last Saturday. He was removing the cover on an oil cup when his sleeve caught in the machinery, with the result as stated. The bone was not broken straight off, but was twisted apart. He was brought to town and Dr. Truscott dressed the injured member, and it is liable to be considerable time before it heals, owing to the nature of the fracture.
