Under the able direction of K. C. Schmidt, work on the electric light plant is progressing rapidly. The poles are now up and the work on the foundation for the engine and dynamo is approaching completion. Mr. Schmidt is anxious to have all people who will make use of electric current, satisfied in every way with the plant and to that end is putting forth his best efforts to make the plant as perfect as possible in every way. He is thoroughly competent and has had a great deal of experience both in installing plants and in wiring residences and business places and all his work is done in a thoro, workmanlike manner, and will fully comply with the strictest regulations of the insurance companies.—Hanford Enterprise.
