

JESSIE NEWS.

Chas. Waaram has gone to Binford where he has work for a short time.

Edna Hogan was a Cooperstown on Thursday. She is planning for school in the near future.

Some of our business men are considering the idea of raising Van Dykes. Fashionable, you know.

Glen Anderson left Wednesday for a Twin City trip and returned Monday. He is a gay bird in his new togs.

Our only "Butch" says he must study so he will go to Fargo and attend college for awhile. We wish him success.

Col. Mark and a party of friends from Jamestown spent a short time in this vicinity hunting ducks. They had only fair success.

Mrs. J. G. Fitzgerald, who was a guest of the Fred Tollefson family for a short time, has returned to her home at Jamestown.

The Kent Attractions showed here Friday and Saturday nights. The offerings were both good and thoroughly appreciated by all present.

A couple of our local nimrods went shooting recently and when the birds came down they proved to be a new kind of goose. In fact the hunters conclude that those geese were "Looney."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thorn autoed to McHenry Saturday evening on business matters. As a result of the cold, Mr. Thorn was taken with an attack of the grippe and was laid up for a brief period.

Mrs. Frank Ressler of Waterville, Minnesota, spent about ten days at the M. E. Wilkinson home and returned to her home Monday. Adeline Wilkinson left with her to spend the winter and attend school there.

Adolph Fiebigger's smile is broader than ever. Like a well known breakfast food, there is a reason. Little Miss Fiebigger will be a year old, on Oct. 2, 1917. Mr. and Mrs. Fiebigger have the best wishes of their many friends.

There will be services in the school house Sunday afternoon at 3:30. This will be the last sermon here until after the conference. It will be decided there who will continue the work here and at Cooperstown. A cordial welcome is extended to all who care to attend.

The carpenters are busy at the H. Hovel barn. This will be a large structure, the ground plan being 32 x 100 feet. Herman wants room to move around when feeding the cattle. He plans to use more stock to market the farm products. The Ed Fiebigger barn is nearly done. Hovel and Suess are pushing right along.

There were many sorrowful hearts on Friday last when it was known that the seven month old baby girl of our friends Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dalton had passed away. She had been sick a short time with the measles when she suddenly was taken with pneumonia. Dr. Truscott was called but was too late. It was impossible for him to do anything.

The funeral services were held at the house Saturday forenoon and interment at the West Prairie Lutheran Church cemetery. Rev. Stinson of Cooperstown was brought up by R. Thorn and conducted the service.

There were a large number of friends present. Everyone who could do so went to the cemetery. The little one's face was certainly a sweet one. There was no trace of pain at all. This will make for a pleasant memory as the lonely days passed by.
