

We are all pleased to greet our friend, Harvey Larson on his return from Nashua, Iowa, where his wife underwent an operation. As noted in the previous issue of The Times, she was taken ill very suddenly, so much so in fact that they could not reach the hospital. While the operation was a serious one she is now on the road to recovery, but the doctor insisted that she make no attempt to travel for at least a month. Her many friends in Jessie tender them their best wishes and hope to soon greet Mrs. Larson at her own home.