Manager Bersagel and Sanfrid Saaberg opened up their place of business, the Hope Implement Co. Wednesday morning to find that the place had been entered during the night and the sum of over forty dollars in currency stolen, besides some cutglass, and a revolver. The culprit left no clew so they are without the slightest knowledge of whom he could be. This is the time of the year when characters blow up to this country so hereafter it is likely that all doors will be securely bolted and safes locked.—Luverne Ledger.
