

very reliable doctor.

W. G. Tweed and wife returned on Monday from Minneapolis, where they had gone to consult a throat specialist. Mrs. Tweed got a plum pit stuck in her throat while eating sauce and it was feared that an operation would be necessary. The pit was removed, however, without any surgical treatment. They stopped off at Lake Park on their return for a few days and were accompanied to Binford by Mrs. Tweed's mother, who will remain for awhile.
