

Engineer Martin had a wreck at Casselton Friday night. A new conductor on the Breckenridge division sidetracked a string of empty cars on the Aneta track by mistake, and when the Hope train pulled in about 10 o'clock, Engineer Martin did not see the cars until within a few rods. He reversed his engine and all hands jumped. The engine was completely wrecked, likewise several box cars. The twenty passengers were badly shook up but none seriously hurt. B. C. Shaw was in the fracas and came out with a sliver in his nose. He is carrying more accident insurance since. If you would like a policy, see him.
