

Quite a little excitement occurred in front of the Hope House Monday afternoon when somebody tried to Carrie Nation somebody with a big ax. As we hear the story, Curfman claims Myers owes a balance on a wash bill. Myers claims not, because he says a deal was made to do the laundry work for the hotel at a certain price, and that Curfman now demands a larger fee; so, in order to play even Curfman attempted to take a sack of potatoes. No one was hurt and the usual crowd gathered; some dark and some white, and in the midst of the excitement the "coons" swipped the potatoes, and there you are. We know nothing about the matter, but if Mr. Myers owes the laundry bill, he should most certainly pay it; because a wash woman earns her money by the sweat of her brow, if any one in this wide world does.
