

One of the most exasperating things within our experience is to have a lot of cows and hogs running over the garden patch and browsing on and rubbing against the trees upon which so much labor has been expended to make grow. Have we an ordinance prohibiting stock running at large within the corporate limits? If so let us have it enforced and if we have none let us have one passed at once so that this nuisance can be regulated.