

Little Roy Loney met with a painful, and what might have been a serious, accident this evening. He secured a torpedo used in the explosive canes, so much in evidence these days, and, putting it in his mouth, began chewing on it when the thing exploded loosening his teeth and cutting his lips quite badly. The wound was dressed by Dr. Johnston and the little fellow is getting along nicely.

---