

SCHOOL NOTES

The class in Physics has finished Dynamics and will now take a brief review before entering the subject of Heat.

The Physiography class is studying earthquakes and volcanic eruptions. This class will finish this subject this semestre and take up Geology in the spring term.

The Botany class will have finished the theoretical study of the subject by January 23rd, at which time the final examination comes and will take up Astronomy.

The State High School Board of Examiners have changed the dates of the finals to January 23, 1905, which is the close of the first semestre. This is a wise change in view of the fact that it will give the student more time for the completion of term subjects. The old schedule was a poor regulation and the new one is received with gladness.

The High School department will begin rhetorical immediately after Thanksgiving. The school will be divided into two sections, one of which will recite every two weeks. Thus each student will appear on the program only once a month. This arrangement will not detract from his interest in and application to his studies. All must participate in the exercises and be prepared promptly when the occasion comes. The selection of the exercise is not entirely optional with the student but must be done with the assistance of the teachers in charge.

Miss Bowers, who is a graduate in oratory, will give each student personal instruction by way of preparation for his appearance before his friends and school. We eventually expect to make these exercises a public function and conduct them in the auditorium on Friday evenings.

Our attendance and punctuality are splendid. We are striving to keep them so. Then take it upon yourselves to see that the children are started to school promptly.

Mr. Geo. Fessler visited the High School Monday.

Mrs. Ed. Carpenter visited the third and fourth grades and primary room Friday and took home splendid reports. We invite all parents and friends to visit our schools and see for themselves what is being done for the students.
