

Dr. Murray Dead

Minneapolis Tribune, Dec. 8:

Dr. Edward Murray, founder of the Murray Institute, died at his home, 1819 Nicollet avenue, last night at 8 o'clock. He was born in Wisconsin, Dec. 12, 1861, and while still a young man came to this city. For many years he worked as a machinist, and was the first engineer in the new court house. In 1886 he was married to Miss Katherine Kirby and shortly afterwards, through his interest in medicine and knowledge of drugs, picked up at spare moments, he discovered the cure which made him famous.

Leaving his position as an engineer and machinist he devoted his whole time to the study of drugs and a cure for drunkenness and established an institute at 1212 First avenue south. Within a few months he had to seek larger quarters at 137 Tenth street, and in 1896 moved to his present location at 1819 Nicollet avenue. Two other institutions are owned and controlled by him, one at Fargo, and the other at Seattle. He is survived by two sons and a daughter, Leonard, Lawrence and Lillian. He had seven brothers, John, Frank, Ralph, Richard, Thomas and James, and one sister, Julia, who resides in St. Paul.
