

The telephone exchange line force has been having a hard time of it lately. The exchange is being moved into its new quarters upstairs over P. E. Nelson's hardware, and as a consequence many phones have been on the bum occasioned by the many wires to be connected up to the new switchboard the process being a slow one. The business will be straightened out in a few days and then better service will be given the patrons of the exchange. In the meantime a little patience is asked until the tangles have been straightened out.
