

Albert Lee, George Goodman's engineer, was quite severely burned about the legs and hands last Friday. The straw and stubble around the engine got on fire and set fire to Mr. Lee's clothing, and he was badly burned before the flames were put out. He was brought to town, and is now being cared for at the home of Editor Rearick, Dr. Brimi having his case in charge.