

SCHOOL NOTES.

Mrs Mary E. Slingsby, of Riverside, was a visitor to the school on Monday.

Miss Alta Gilmore was the recipient of a novel ink-stand during the past week. It is three inches square and covered with fifty specimens of agates, petrified woods, and gold, silver and copper ore.

Mrs. Philip, Mrs. Vadnie, Mrs. Woodworth and Mrs. VanDusen were visitors in the Primary department last week.

One of the primary pupils (aged 6) came to his teacher the other day, and the following conversation ensued:

"My stummick feels bad today."

"Well, I'm sorry. What is the matter?"

"I et seven oranges yesterday, and mebbe that's what ails me, but I don't think so."

John Cyrus was ill last week.

Kenneth Killen enjoyed (?) a siege of the tooth-ache a few days ago.

Visitors in Miss Curtis' room last week were Mrs Vadnie, Mrs Woodworth and Mrs. Huff.

Miss Julia Curry visited the schools a week ago Tuesday.

Bertha Kubn has returned to school after a three week's illness.

Our former principal, H. L. Moody, was a visitor last week.

A part of the books for the library of the Intermediate room were received Monday. A fine book case is expected soon.

Royce Graham is a new pupil in Mr. McPherson's room.

Will Taylor started to school last week. He attends school during the forenoon session, and works in the afternoon.

Miss Curtis says that, although there has been much improvement in regularity of attendance and in punctuality since the beginning of the term, still they are not yet up to the standard; and requests the parents to see that the pupils are started off to school in time to avoid tardiness.

Ethel Joslyn was absent for a few days last week on account of illness.

There are five unclaimed handkerchiefs and a hair ribbon adorning the walls of the intermediate room. "Owners can have same by calling and proving property."

Mr McPherson has purchased a fine Boston Fern for his room.

Howard Boise is quite fond of flowers, but they wont stay with him. He gets them safely to the school-room, but then—loses them. Who finds them is another part of the story.

The High School is reading "Blennerhassett" as a part of the course in English.

The Ninth Grade has temporarily dropped Civics from the course, and now takes only the four studies—Latin, Algebra, General History and English.
