

Sabin=Baker.

The handsome residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Baker, jr., of north Broadway, was the scene of a wedding with most charming appointments on Wednesday evening, when Miss Lucretia Jarvis Baker became the bride of William H. Sabin. The Baker residence was a beautiful bower of foliage and flowers. In the long drawing room vines trailed their glossy leaves over the walls and wreathed the doorways and windows; the palms and ferns in the end of the room were arranged as in a chancel and in among the drooping fronds was a huge marriage bell of white carnations, while tall white tapers in gold cathedral holders flamed in a semicircle against the green. Mr. Simmons presided at the pipe organ and played a programme of appropriate numbers, The Evening Star from Tannhauser, and Mendelssohns Spring Song, as the guests arrived. The Lohengrin bridal chorus announced the coming of the bride and the intermezzo from Cavalliera Rusticana was sounded as an accompaniment to the service which was read by Dean Burleson. As the triumphant strains of the Lohengrin chorus rang through the room the bridal party entered. First came Dean H. L. Burleson, followed by the groom and best man, Roy T. Baker. Little Earnest Root dressed in a Louis XIV suit of royal purple velvet carried the ring buried in a rose. Miss Eula Miller, the bride's only attendant came next, beautifully gowned in mousseline de soie over lace; she carried an arm bouquet of carnations. The bride entered with her brother, Thos. Baker jr. Her gown was a beautiful one of chiffon and point lace over taffeta and she carried bride's roses. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served in the dining room. American beauty roses were artistically arranged on the serving table in the mantle and in the center of the exquisit duchesse lace cloth which covered the polished table, with tall silver candelabra holding red tapers on either side. Only the relatives were present. The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Baker, sr., Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Baker, Mrs. Mary E. Sabin and Miss Sabin, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Sabin, George Sabin, Miss Root, and Mrs. Hobart. Mr. and Mrs. Sabin left over the Great Northern for an eastern trip. They will be at home after March 1 at Hope N. D. The presents were numerous and elegant.—Fargo Call.
