

Thru an oversight on our part we failed last week to chronicle the accident to Jeweler Strickler, which luckily terminated as it did. Mr. and Mrs. Strickler were out for a drive and when a few miles north on the Sherbrooke road Mr. Strickler found it necessary to get out of the buggy to adjust something at the back of the rig, when the horse became frightened at a bright colored lap robe and started to run, Mr. Strickler in attempting to stop the horse fell between the shafts and the buggy and dragged for some distance, but luckily, Mrs. Strickler managed to steer the horse for a telephone pole and thus saved her husband what might have proven a serious accident. Mr. and Mrs. Strickler are to be congratulated that the final outcome was no no worse.
