

Fred Meuse, of Colgate, will not attempt to flag an automobile again very soon by jumping in front of the machine and wildly throwing up his arms as he did last Monday when E. M. Fuller of this city was driving into that town. Just as Mr. Fuller was turning his machine to run past Mr. Meuse, he jumped to one side and in the same direction that the machine was running with the result that he was knocked down and run over by the auto. He received two or three scalp wounds, which necessitated the doctor taking a few stitches, besides receiving a number of bad bruises. Luckily no bones were broken. There is no question but what Mr. Meuse received a lesson that will last him the balance of his days and that the next time he sees an automobile coming his way he will steer clear of it or climb a telegraph pole. Sheriff Standley drove Dr. Hedding to Colgate in his auto on double quick time, when the doctor gave the man necessary attention. At last reports the patient was resting quite well and it is thought would soon be out again.
