Mr. Harry Cooley was born July 22, 1881, in Fargo, N. D., his parents afterwards removing to Broadlawn, N. D., where his youthful time was passed. At the time of his death he was at Rugby pursuing his occupation of stone mason. Here he was attacked with a complication of brain and typhoid fever. He was ill but three weeks when the destroying angel took him away. His mother is comforted with the assurance that he was ready and prepared to go. He leaves a father, mother, four sisters, and three brothers to mourn his untimely death, but our Father, who guides unerringly the life of even the smallest thing and numbers even the hairs of our head, knows what is best for us, and though sad, that just stepping into the fullness of the life of strong manhood as this young man was, we must be resigned and bless our God for even our griefs as well as our joys. The time will surely come if not on this earth, in heaven. That "Thy will be done," is the prayer of each heart.—Galesburg item in Hillsboro Banner.
