

Henry Gullickson narrowly escaped being gored to death by an angry bull last Thursday and his being only a few feet from the fence probably saved his life, he escaped by having his right arm broken up by the elbow. Mr. Gullickson went into the pasture after his cows when the animal came up behind him and knocked him down and commenced tramping on him breaking his arm, he was able to work under the fence and escaped further and more serious injuries. Dr. Bergstrom set the arm.
