

Sudden Death.

The many friends of Mr. G. C. Koyl and family were very much shocked to learn of the death of their only son, little Frank, a boy about seven years old, which occurred last Tuesday morning after only being sick for about five days. He was taken sick with a sore throat last Thursday and tonsillitis was what it was called by the attending physician. Later it developed into a case of diphtheria and the little boy succumbed to the ravages of this dreadful disease and died as stated above. Everything that could possibly be done to save the little life was tried, but to no avail. Mr. Koyl had been away from home for over two weeks and arrived home too late to see his little son alive. It is a sad blow to the parents and family and the sympathy of our people is extended to them. The nature of the disease would not permit of a public funeral and the remains were interred in the cemetery Tuesday afternoon. It is sincerely hoped that no further cases of the disease will develop.
