

Wedding Bells.

Many of the young people of Hope remembering the Misses Cloughs, who several years ago visited their cousins Misses Fannie and Clara Wallace, will be interested in the following clipping from one of the Detroit, (Mich.,) papers:

One of the notable^d weddings among Detroit young people occurred last evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Clough, on Hancock avenue, at which time their accomplished daughter Miss Blanche Wallace Clough was united in marriage to Mr. William Cooper Harris, one of our talented young lawyers, who is well and favorable known to many of Detroit's citizens. The ceremony took place at 7 p. m., and was followed by a numerously attended reception from 8 to 10. The parlors in the elegant home of the bride's parents were beautifully decorated for the occasion and the charming bride looked especially lovely in her wedding dress of crpe de chene over white silk trimmed with lace and pearls. The bridesmaids were Miss Minnie Clough and Miss Pauline Harris. Hoag's orchestra furnished music for the occasion. The wedding presents were beautiful and numerous. After the reception the newly wedded pair departed for a trip of a month, after which they will return and in the fall go to housekeeping in the city.
