

Oscar Johnson, one of our well-to-do farmers, returned last Friday from an extended visit of four months with relatives and friends at the old home in Norway. Having been away some twenty-two years the folks did not know him upon his arrival there though expecting him but gave him a warm and hearty welcome upon learning his identity. A great many changes have taken place in the country, manners and customs of the people etc so that things were quite different in some ways than expected. Mr. Johnson says that the reports of the suffering in the northern part of the country have not been exaggerated and that the contributions of friends on this side have been a God send to the people for which they are very grateful. He reports a very enjoyable time but is glad to get back to North Dakota.
