

The little boy of Agent McPherson had the misfortune of falling from the landing of the stair, last Monday afternoon, striking his head on the corner of some table leaves, cutting an ugly gash. The wound is a bad one and came near fracturing the skull. Dr. Philip was called and soon had the little fellow's wounds dressed.