

SCHOOL NOTES

The eighth grade will have final examinations Thursday and Friday and from present indications a large number will take the examinations. The eighth grade will be entirely separated from the High School department next year and all who are conditioned in any one subject will have to remain in the eighth grade until such condition is removed. There will be no deviation from this action and we trust all will successfully pass the finals that we may be saved the unpleasant necessity of enforcing this ruling.

We again take the opportunity of requesting parents not to start their children for the first time until September as there is no class open now to them and we cannot form a class for beginners until that time. This plan is better for the children and school and will be stringently enforced. We trust parents will heartily co-operate with us in maintaining uniformity in a general plan and we assure them we are doing that which is best for their children.

As we issue our reports monthly, some are always dissatisfied with their standings and upon close inspection the reasons are self evident. A student who attends school twenty days per month, naturally stands at the head of his class—other things being equal. No student can afford to miss a single day of school. In case he does it will greatly influence his class standing, department and grades.

Mrs. Jefferson and Mrs. McKinnie were High School visitors Monday.

Mrs. Philip visited the High School department during the Rhetoricals last Friday.

The pupils of the High School will give an entertainment soon for the benefit of the school library. Program will be given next week—also date.

Mrs. Austin visited all the grades last Monday. Glad to have so many visitors. We are always pleased to know others are interested in the work we are doing.

Those having perfect spelling in seventh grade last week are Clara McLean, Zella Jacobson. In the sixth grade, Alma Hanson.

Last week the name of Ernest Palfrey was omitted. He had perfect spelling.

Clara Woodworth has gone to Grafton for a visit.

Those in the Primary who were perfect in spelling last week were Floy Welis, Annie Meader, Della Dorrance, Ralph Klovstad, Kenyon Woodworth, Lyle Bowen, Frank Meader and Georgia Sussex.

Those in the second and Third grade who were perfect in spelling were Elsie Klovstad, Florence Boise, Hiller Stark, Amos Stith, Lawrence Miller, Ina Jefferson, Mazie Gilmore, Cora Quenette, Grace Hazlett, Gladys Philip, Floyd Reynolds and Paul Roney.
