
Finger Number Two.

William Johnson, who has been in the employ of A. M. McLaughlin, is the second one this fall to lose a finger in a saw. While at work Wednesday afternoon a crooked stick that he was sawing turned in his hands and threw the right hand into the saw, entirely severing the second finger and badly cutting the first and third. The doctor thinks, however, that it will not be necessary to remove the latter.
