

PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

Ole Kalvik, who has been assisting in Hazlett's meat market, met with a peculiar, painful and what might have been a very serious accident last week. While rendering lard, a double bottomed dipper was being used and, owing probably to the presence of water between the two bottoms, a dipperful of lard "exploded" throwing boiling lard over Mr. Kalvik's face and hands inflicting injuries that are very painful but which will not prove serious.
