A Small Affair.

A simple-hearted, ingenious young German, by name Louis Schultz, living in Hoboken, became engaged after a brief acquaintance to a young maiden whose reputation as a coquette was well known. One of Louis's friends on meeting him one day, said: "You don't mean to tell me that you are going to marry Minnie Blancke?" "Sure," replied Louis, "for vy not?" "Why, she's been engaged to every young man in Hoboken." "Vell," slowly answered Louis, "Hoboken ain't sush a big place."
