

Fred Beier, Jr., fell from the top of a telephone pole Monday that jarred him up considerably. He was working for Mr. Goff along with a crew of men and in stretching some wire he was accidentally jerked from the pole and fell a distance of twenty-five feet into a soft slough which accounts for his not getting more severely hurt. Outside of being sore he escaped without further injury, which is certainly a mighty lucky thing for him.