

The school board held a special meeting Monday evening and decided to put in a course of manual training and domestic science the coming term, compulsory in the sixth and eighth grades and first year high school and elective in the other high school classes.