

RURAL IMPROVEMENT LEAGUE.

A Very Interesting Meeting Held by the League. Good Program Given.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Mills the president. After Rev. John Dingle offered prayer.

Mr. Mills addressed the meeting on impressions received at the grain growers convention at Fargo. He complimented the farmers for not visiting Moorhead's drinking saloons as was shown by the absence of drunken men.

J. B. Armstrong next took the floor and discussed the subject of feed and care of horses, advancing many practical ideas. He emphasized the feeding of carrots to horses, stating that he considered carrots worth as much or more than oats, pound for pound. Mr. Armstrong's address was well read and appreciated.

Rev. Evans followed with "Sunshine in Our Homes." I think we as parents are responsible for this sunshine business. I married a couple the other day and told them to keep up the honeymoon all the time. If you have not kissed your wife lately go home tonight and do it." Mr. Evans' remarks had to be heard to be appreciated.

Mr. Williams followed taking the subject of Apilary. He showed conclusively that bees can be raised right here in North Dakota and that successfully. Question. How much honey have you sold in any one year? Answer. This year I sold about six hundred pounds.

We next listened to a very excellent paper by James Park, of Riverside, Steele county, on the subject of noxious weeds. His paper was of great interest and value and was listened to with close attention.

After a lively and interesting discussion the meeting adjourned to meet again one month. Reporter.
