

Mail Carrier Martin Lieberg met with a very unpleasant experience last Friday. While crossing a grade he met a sleigh load of people who persisted in keeping the middle of the road and Martin had to take the ditch. In the meantime an automobile was coming from the rear and the driver of the machine ran in between the two and the machine slewed onto the mail carrier's team causing them to run away throwing Lieberg out of his rig and smashing things up generally. Mr. Lieberg was left lying on the ground in a stunned condition for a long time but the driver of the auto did not stop long enough to see if he was in need of help. The runaway team was caught in a field after a long chase.
