

Dode, Arthur and Manwood Hare came very nearly being asphixiated by coal gas Tuesday morning. They were all sleeping in the same room while the rest of the family were upstairs. The stove was in the next next room to them and the stove doors somehow came open letting the gas into the room. The boys were found in the morning by some of the family in a bad condition. Dr. Almklov was called and administered restoratives. The boys are now all right again.
