

Rev. J. M. Jenson, pastor of the Lutheran church of this city, recently received and has accepted a very flattering call to the pastorate of the church of that denomination at Badger, Iowa. Mr. Jenson has been pastor of the church here for the past five years and during this time has given his whole time to the building up of the church work in this city. He is a true christian gentleman, has done his work conscientiously and well, and during his sojourn in this city has made for himself a lot of friends who admire and respect him and who will be sorry to see he and his estimable wife leave this community. Speaking for ourself the editor regrets to see Mr. Jenson leave because he is a sincere and earnest worker. He will not depart for his new field of labor for probably three months and when he does he will be followed by the best wishes of all. His resignation was handed to the officials of the Lutheran church last Sunday.
