

The Courier man recently visited the new town of Sutton and found a good substantial start for a live town. There is already one hardware store in operation, Hammer Thingelstad Co., from Binford, who have a substantial building. Beecher Cox & Son, of Courtenay, have another good building up and will put in machinery and hardware. The State Bank of Sutton has a nice new building about completed and will open for business right away and the Citizens State Bank of Sutton has let the contract for a fine brick building work on same now being started. Tom Davidson has a new building up and is doing a land office business feeding the hungry and is making good. There is a blacksmith up and doing business, two elevators are going up and a new depot is being started. Then Thompson & Erickson have broken ground for their new general store. Sutton is nicely located in one of the finest agricultural sections in the northwest. That it will make one of the best trading points in this section goes without question. All the business men in the new town are boosters. With its numerous passenger and freight trains daily Sutton will surely be on the map. We don't want to forget the fine lumber business of the Crane-Johnson Co. at this place, also. They have a fine stock of lumber, kept in tight, substantial sheds, and can sell you bone dry lumber of all kinds and fill any bill you want to take to them.
