Mrs. Katherine Koenig died at the county hospital in Fargo last week at the age of 96 years. Death was due to her advanced age.

The deceased, with her husband, who is 107 years old, have been inmates at the hospital for several months past and were loved and respected by all. They were former residents of Casselton and were both born in Belgium.

They were married seventy-five years ago and since have lived in peace and harmony, and were quite contented with their lot until old age overtook them, and having no one to take care of them, they were compelled to accept charity for their support.

The husband was deeply grieved over his wife's death and it is thought that he will not be long in following her to the grave.

Undertaker J. N. Gaard prepared the body for burial and it was shipped to the old home at Casselton for interment.
