

---

Drowned.

Charley Dickinson, who is well known in Cooperstown and vicinity, and the wife of Geo. Jacobson living about eight miles north of McHenry, were drowned in the Sheyenne river north of McHenry near the reservation last Sunday afternoon. The Jacobsons and Dickinson were on their way to the reservation where they were digging wells, and drove into the river at the usual ford to cross, but were swept away, only Jacobson being able to get ashore. Some of the horses were also drowned. The body of the woman was recovered, but up to Tuesday Dickinson's body had not been found.

A young man named Hensru, who carries the rural mail northwest of McHenry, lost his horse at the same place Tuesday, but saved himself and the mail pouch by grabbing a bush.

---