A rather unfortunate accident occurred last Saturday afternoon. As Mr. Davis was driving up from his farm to Hope, while crossing the railroad track and ascending the embankment, the tugs became slackened and unhitched, the wagon was forced from the horses, scaring them and causing them to start and run up the railroad track till they reached the bridge west of Gilman's, when one got his feet through the ties and became fastened, while the other fell off the edge of the bridge and was held suspended by the harness. When the fastenings were cut loose the animal fell to the ground, a distance of some six feet, resulting in injuries which necessitated his being killed.
