

—The Tower City mail came in flying on Tuesday last. The team became frightened at the train when on the other side of the track and "lit out," throwing the driver from the buggy, his injuries consisting however, of only a few painful bruises. The frightened team dashed down the street and into the town square, where the tongue was broken and the buggy left otherwise uninjured. The team then circled to the north, running about a mile north of town, where they were stopped by some one on horseback. The horses were uninjured.
