

—Judge Laor King received word from his pension attorney recently that he had been granted an increase in his pension from four dollars to sixteen dollars a month, with back pay from 1880, amounting to about $1,500. If anyone was ever worthy of such recognition (and every soldier boy is worthy who fought for the stars and stripes) it is the Judge, and his many friends rejoice with him in his good fortune.