

Reunited.

In the year 1878 in Berlin, Wis., there met by chance two young people named B. E. Corey and Miss Mary McKinnon. They seemed to be mutually attracted and in April, 1879, were married. Feeling happy and care-free, they naturally had a dislike of being "cooped up" in the hills and woods of Wisconsin, so that summer they came west and settled at Hunter, N. D., where Mr. Corey secured land and for a while everything ran smoothly. A few years later discontent cropped out, due, perhaps, to misunderstandings, and in June 1884, the couple separated. Years passed by and each perhaps thought the other dead. The former Mrs. Corey married a Mr. Edgecome and settled at Kensal where they lived happy until 1902 when he died. Mr. Corey married again but this lady died seven years ago.

By chance Mr. Corey heard this spring that his first wife was still alive and where she resided, and wrote her a letter which she received on the twenty-fifth anniversary of her first marriage. A short correspondence ensued and by this time Mr. Corey decided that his home was somewhat lonesome, so hitching up his span of trotters he made a bee line for Velva and thence to Kensal, where a happy reunion followed. The next day the reunited pair drove to Minot, where Judge Murphy again made one this pair who had lived apart for over twenty years. They passed through here July 19 on their way to Mr. Corey's home near Deepriver.

Mr. Corey is a very prosperous farmer and quite popular in the northern part of the country where he has a host of friends.—Crookston Journal.
