

Anton G. Anderson, a prosperous farmer fourteen miles north of Courtenay, has just returned from a six weeks' visit to the west coast. He stopped off at Minneapolis, Stillwater, Omaha, Denver and Colorado Springs, drove through the Garden of the Gods, drank water from the soda and sulphur and iron springs at Monument, Colorado, visited Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Victoria, Vancouver and stayed a week with his uncle at Broadview, Sask., on his trip. He reports a fine trip all the way through but for making money and a good living he prefers North Dakota to any place he saw during his entire trip.