

Courtenay is fast becoming famous for its large number of inventors. The latest patent is the one applied for by Jas. Caven, who has charge of the books at the H. N. Tucker Co. The patent applied for is on a loose leaf in a ledger and the plan is a good one, it being a great time saver, doing away with the keeping of a note and open account on separate pages, it keeping an entire account on the one page. Several stationery houses, having seen the ledger sheet, say that it is something long sought for and that there will be a ready market for the same when it is once offered for sale.
