

A serious accident happened to Bert Nelson employed on the Brewer threshing machine as separator man. It seems that they were cleaning up around the machine and had thrown back the cylinder cap and Mr. Nelson stepped into the cylinder. His foot was so badly crushed and bruised that it was necessary to amputate it about two inches above the ankle.

---