

TWO ARRESTS

ANDY CRAWFORD AND O. R. SWEETING WERE IN THE TOILS THE FIRST OF THE WEEK BUT CRAWFORD MADE GOOD HIS ESCAPE.

For some time L. O. Larson thought someone was too familiar with his oat bin and on Saturday night set a watch to see who it was. Nothing occurred that night and again on Sunday night he had August Swanson watching the bin. About 8:45 Mr. Swanson saw someone approaching and they climbed up the ladder and went into the bin and Mr. Swanson gave the alarm by firing off a revolver. The man stuck his head out of the hole in the roof through which he had entered and it was found to be Andy Crawford, who gave as his his reason for being there that he had "planted" some whiskey in the oats the night before and had come back to get his property. But Mr. Larson hardly thought this to be correct and took him into the store where they kept him during the night and on Monday morning he had his preliminary hearing before Justice Bouer and his bond was fixed at $2,000 for his appeaaance on Wednesday morning. He was unable to get anyone to go his bail and as the town is without a suitable jail he had to be watched until he could have his hearing. August Swanson was detailed by the marshal to watch him on Tuesday night. He and Andy were in Porter's pool hall and in less time than it takes to tell it Andy got out of the back door and hasn't been seen since—at least not by the authorities of the law.
