

NO CAUSE FOR HOLDING INQUEST

BUT COUNTY CORONER WAS SUM-MONED TO HOLD ONE JUST THE SAME. MAN NOT DEAD.

Coroner A. W. Guest was called to the home of J. W. Warburton, two miles northwest of this city, to hold an inquest on the body of a man who was thought to be dead. Upon the coroner's arrival it was found that the dead man had aroused himself and walked into the house where he was found lying insensible on the floor. The body of the supposed dead man was found by Mr. Warburton near the barn and seemed to be cold and stiff. As he thought him to be dead Mr. Warburton did not move the body but left it as he had found it, until the coroner could arrive. The man had been employed near Cleveland last summer and was thought by farmers near that place, to be mentally unhinged. He came to Mr. Warburton's farm late this fall and wanted employment, which was given him, and it is said he is a handy man around a farm and a good worker. It appears that he had been a hard drinker before he came to this state, but since his arrival here he has been "on the wagon." His downfall came when he found a bottle of pure alcohol, which Mr. Warburton had sent for and which he intended to use in some bitters for medical purposes.

He became a little wild after he came to, thinking someone had been trying to play a joke down. The last that has been heard of him was when he called on Dr. Guest at midnight Thursday wanting to swear out warrants for the Warburton family.
