
Fried Town.

The town of Fried has been platted north of the city and will some day be quite a city, if the hope of the present owners is fulfilled. Ten acres has been platted and divided into ten lots of one acre each and half of them have been disposed of. The corner lot, facing the Catholic church, has been reserved for a parochial school which it is hoped to establish there shortly. The next four lots have been sold and residences will be built next season. The town is platted by Peter, and Peter U. Fried who donate the first lot to the church. A thriving community is growing up there, clustering about the Catholic church. — Capital.
