

any parlor.

L. H. Larson is rather under the weather as the result of an accident while loading a car. He fell from the car and landed on his back across a rail, breaking one of the short ribs in his right side and it has been with difficulty that he has been able to move around since. It is lucky for him that he did not fall any farther as he undoubtedly would have broken his back.