

Joseph Peterson, one of the assistants at the depot, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Monday. He was helping to load a trunk on one of the trains when his feet slipped from under him and he fell with the trunk on top of him. He escaped with a badly bruised hand and considers himself lucky.