

---

The funeral services of the late C. A. Sanford was delayed until Saturday on account of the stormy weather prevailing on Friday, the day set for burial. A large number of people from adjoining towns were present to accompany the remains on the last sad voyage from whence there is no return. The attendance from the village and vicinity was unusually large, the deceased being so well known here.

---